

Ἀπολλοφάνης ὁ Ἀθηναῖος

Apollophanes of Athens: Fragments on Feasting and Merriment

eul_aid: eem

Period: Κλασική Classical
Dialect: Κωμωδία Ἀττική Attic Comedy
Domain: Κωμωδία Comedy
Format: Ἑμμετρος Verse

Apollophanes was an Athenian comic poet active during the late 5th and early 4th centuries BCE, a contemporary of Aristophanes. He won first prize at the Lenaeon festival at least once. No further biographical details survive.

Only fragments and titles of his comedies remain. Attested plays include Kretes ("The Cretans") and Deliades ("Women of Delos"), both surviving in fragments, and Kothornoi ("Buskins"), known only by title. The Suda also mentions a Lemnomena, which may be an error or variant title.

As a minor poet of Old Comedy, Apollophanes' fragments contribute to our understanding of the genre's broader linguistic and thematic range beyond its major figures. His work aids in reconstructing the history of Athenian comic theatre during the Peloponnesian War and its aftermath.

Works (2)

- Ἀποσπάσματα περὶ Συμποσίων καὶ Εὐωχίας · Fragments on Banquets and Merriment · 8 passages
- Ἀποσπάσματα περὶ Εὐωχίας καὶ Εὐφροσύνης · Fragments on Feasting and Merriment · 12 passages