

Πολιόχος ὁ κωμικός

Poliochus the Comic Poet on Rustic Meals

eul_aid: cfi

Period: Κλασική Classical
Dialect: Κωμωδία Ἀττική Attic Comedy
Domain: Κωμωδία Comedy
Format: Ἑμμετρος Verse

Poliochus the Comic Poet was a poet of Middle Comedy active in the 4th century BCE. He is an obscure figure, known primarily through quotations by the scholar Athenaeus in the Deipnosophistae. No biographical details about his life survive.

Two fragmentary plays are attributed to him: Dionysius and The Woman from Crete. Both are preserved only in citations by Athenaeus. Poliochus exemplifies the many minor comic poets of his era whose works are now lost.

His significance lies in Athenaeus's preservation of fragments that offer insight into the themes and language of Middle Comedy, which shifted from direct political satire toward social humor and mythological parody. The title Dionysius suggests engagement with contemporary figures, placing him within this broader tradition.

Works (2)

- Ἀποσπάσματα · On Rustic Meals and Simple Living · 6 passages
- Ἀποσπάσματα · Simple Life · 6 passages