

Ἀναξίλας ὁ κωμικός (ὁ Ῥηγῖνος)

Anaxilas the Comic Poet on Rural and Daily Life

eul_aid: hdu

Period: Κλασική Classical
Dialect: Ἀττική Attic \(com, frg\)
Domain: Κωμωδία Comedy
Format: Ἑμμετρος Verse

Anaxilas the Comic Poet was a poet of Middle Comedy active in Athens during the 4th century BCE. A native of Rhegium in southern Italy, he was also called an Athenian, possibly indicating he had been granted citizenship. He won first prize at the Lenaea festival, with his period of greatest activity placed around 350 BCE.

Titles for approximately 34 of his comedies are known, including Calypso, Circe, The Treasure, and The Harp-Girl. All of his works are lost except for about 42 fragments preserved by later authors such as Athenaeus.

Anaxilas is a key figure of the transitional Middle Comedy, illustrating the genre's shift from political satire toward mythological parody and social themes involving domestic character types, which prefigured New Comedy. His fragments provide valuable evidence for the evolution of Athenian comic theater.

Works (2)

- Ἀποσπάσματα περὶ Βίου Καθημερινοῦ · Comic Fragments on Daily Life · 98 passages
- Ἀποσπάσματα περὶ Βίου Ἀγροικοῦ · Fragments on Rural Life · 106 passages