The designation Elegiac Fragments Anonymous II refers not to a historical individual but to a modern editorial collection of unattributed Greek elegiac poetry. The poems within it were likely composed between the 7th and 3rd centuries BCE. The elegiac form, used for subjects ranging from war to personal reflection, originated in Ionia, and its dialect is consequently classified as Ionic, heavily influenced by the epic tradition.

The sole work is the fragmentary collection known as the Elegiac Fragments, comprising anonymous poems preserved through quotations in later authors, papyri, and inscriptions.

These anonymous fragments are crucial for understanding the breadth and development of Greek elegy beyond canonical authors. They evidence the meter's widespread use for public and private themes and provide key insights into linguistic, metrical, and social history across centuries, representing a collective poetic voice from the Archaic and Classical periods.
