No biographical information exists for the anonymous author designated Epic Work Anonymous II. This figure is identified solely as the composer of an anonymous epic poem dated broadly between the 8th and 4th centuries BCE, within the Archaic period. Such anonymity is typical for many early Greek hexameter poems whose authorship was unknown or later attributed to more famous names like Homer.

The author's sole known work is the poem Epic Work Anonymous II, a modern descriptive title meaning "Anonymous Epic Poem." Its specific subject, length, and content are not detailed in available sources, but it would be a hexameter composition on a mythological theme.

This anonymous work represents the broader epic tradition that existed alongside the canonical works of Homer and Hesiod. Its existence illustrates the fluid nature of early Greek poetic tradition before the establishment of fixed authorial identities and canons, and is crucial for understanding the full scope of mythological knowledge in the Archaic age.
