

Μοιρώ ἡ Βυζαντία

Moero of Byzantium on Zeus and Dionysus

eul_aid: ica

Period: Ἑλληνιστική Hellenistic

Dialect: Κοινή Koine

Domain: Ἔπος Epic

Format: Ἑμμετρος Verse

Moero, also known as Myro, of Byzantium was a Hellenistic poet active in the 3rd century BCE. Her epithet indicates her origin from Byzantium, and she is recorded as the mother of the tragedian Homerus of Byzantium. No further biographical details survive.

Her work is known only through fragments and testimonia. Ancient sources attribute two poems to her: Arachna or Arachne, a hexameter epic of which a single fragment describing the nymph Britomartis survives, and Mnemosyne, a hymn known only by its title. Both were likely composed in epic hexameter.

Moero is significant as one of the few attested female poets of the Hellenistic period. Her inclusion in ancient catalogues of notable women poets confirms her recognition in antiquity. Her choice of epic mythological themes demonstrates female engagement with mainstream literary genres, moving beyond purely personal subjects.

Works (2)

- Ἐπιγράμματα · Epigrams · 8 passages
- Ἀποσπάσματα περὶ Διὸς καὶ Διονύσου · Fragments on Zeus and Dionysus · 18 passages