

Ἐφίππος ὁ Ἀθηναῖος

Alexander's Feast in the Fragments of Ehippus

eul_aid: fkk

Period: Κλασική Classical
Dialect: Ἀττική Attic \(com, frg\)
Domain: Κωμῳδία Comedy
Format: Ἑμμετρος Verse

Ephippus of Athens was a comic poet of the 4th century BCE, active during the period of Middle Comedy. He was a contemporary of playwrights like Antiphanes and Alexis, and his works were produced at the major Athenian festivals. No further biographical details survive.

His comedies survive only in fragments. The Suda attributes two plays to him, Artemis and Geryones. Other sources, including Athenaeus, preserve additional titles such as Bousiris, Hebe's Wedding, Nauagos (The Shipwreck), and Obeliaphoroi (The Bread-Carriers).

Ephippus is a representative figure of Middle Comedy, which transitioned from the political satire of Old Comedy toward the domestic plots of New Comedy. His fragments, preserved by authors like Athenaeus, provide valuable insights into the period's social customs, mythological parody, and comic evolution.

Works (2)

- Ἀποσπάσματα περὶ τοῦ Ἀλεξάνδρου Συμποσίου · Fragments on Alexander's Feast · 104 passages
- Ἀποσπάσματα περὶ τοῦ Ἀλεξάνδρου Συμποσίου · Fragments on Alexander's Feast · 101 passages