

Ἀπολλόδωρος ὁ Γελῶς

Apollodorus of Gela on Household Management and Greed

eul_aid: hee

Period: Κλασική Classical
Dialect: Ἀττική Attic \(com, frg\)
Domain: Κωμωδία Comedy
Format: Ἑμμετρος Verse

Apollodorus of Gela was a Greek comic poet of the 4th century BCE, a native of the Sicilian colony of Gela. He is distinguished from later namesakes like Apollodorus of Carystus.

The Suda records him as a contemporary of Menander, placing his floruit in the late 4th century BCE. Only two play titles are definitively attributed to him: Hekatontapylitai and Philadelphoi. Both works are lost, surviving only as titles within the fragmentary record.

Apollodorus represents the transition between Middle and New Comedy. His contemporaneity with Menander positions him at the inception of New Comedy, which emphasized domestic plots and stock characters. His historical significance lies in this placement within the evolution of Athenian comic drama.

Works (2)

- Ἀποσπάσματα περὶ Πλεονεξίας καὶ Κτημάτων · Fragments on Greed and Possessions · 12 passages
- Ἀποσπάσματα περὶ Οἰκονομίας · Fragments on Household Management · 11 passages